Playboy Magazine Collection
An Inventory

Creator: Hefner, Hugh (1926-2017)
Title: Playboy Magazine Collection
Dates: 1955-1994
Abstract: This collection consists of issues of Playboy and OUI magazines ranging from December 1955-June 2018. Playboy is unique among other erotic magazines of its time for its role as a purveyor of culture through political commentary, literature, and interviews with prominent activists, politicians, authors, and artists.

The bulk of the collection dates from the 1960s-1970s and includes articles and interviews related to political debates such as the Cold War, Communism, Vietnam, the Civil Rights Movement, second-wave feminism, LGBTQ rights, and the depiction and consumption of the body. Researchers studying American Culture in the 1960s/70s, Gender & Sexuality, History of Advertising, and History of Photography will find this material of particular interest.

Extent: 15 boxes, 6.25 linear feet
Language: English
Repository: Drew University Library, Madison NJ

Biographical and History Note:

Hugh Hefner, (April 9, 1926 – September 27, 2017), the founder and editor-in-chief of Playboy magazine, was known as a free speech activist, philanthropist, and proponent of sexual freedom. He founded Playboy magazine in 1953 with $1,000 seed money provided by his mother, Grace Hefner, a devout Methodist. The magazine quickly became known for its subversive visual, literary, and political content.

Playboy is unique among other erotic magazines of the same time period for its role as a purveyor of culture through political commentary, literature, and interviews with prominent activists, politicians, authors, and artists.

As a lifestyle magazine, Playboy curated and commodified the image of the modern bachelor of leisure. A man who embodied sophistication and culture through his jazz music, mid-century modern apartment, extensive library, and knowledge of political affairs, art, literature, a man who was, above all, a consumer for a modern economy.
Scope and Content:

This collection consists of issues of Playboy and OUI magazines ranging from December 1955-May 1994. The bulk of the collection was published in the 1960s-1970s and relates to political debates such as the Cold War, Vietnam, Civil Rights Movement, second-wave feminism, counter-culture and youth movements, and the depiction and consumption of the body.

Playboy presented an image of artistic and cultural sophistication through interviews and content with figures such as Pablo Picasso (January 1964), Salvador Dali (July 1964), The Beatles (February 1965), Bob Dylan (March 1966), and John Denver (December 1977).

Playboy’s subversive role in American society consisted not only of the provocative depiction of the female nude, but the presentation of political material, notably through interviews with Civil Rights figures such as Martin Luther King, Jr. (January 1965), artists such as Sammy Davis, Jr, (December 1966) and authors such as James Baldwin (January 1964, December 1964) and Tennessee Williams (April 1973).

The magazine included talks with the Imperial Wizard of the KKK (August 1965), Gov. George Wallace, known for his vehement opposition to Civil Rights (November 1964), demonstrating the cultural divide over Civil Rights. These articles and interviews would sometimes be paired with articles penned by Civil Rights activists, most significantly in December 1966’s Dialog in Black and White a discussion between James Baldwin and Budd Schulberg.

The magazine also offered political commentary on communism and the Cold War through interviews with Ayn Rand (March 1964), Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. (May 1966), and Fidel Castro (January 1967). While other lifestyle magazines shied away from controversial political content, Playboy embraced debates and published articles and interviews that would not be present elsewhere.
