ALAN ALDA

Captain Benjamin Franklin ("Hawkeye") Pierce--dedicated combat surgeon and chief prankster on \textit{M*A*S*H}, one of the most successful comedy series in the history of television--is accustomed to handling emergencies. When the Rev. Jesse Jackson was reported ill, Frank Ostertag--alumnus of both the College and the Theological School, and pastor of the United Methodist Church, Leonia, N.J.--called his good friend and neighbor Alan Alda to step in on 36-hour notice as Drew's Commencement speaker.

Mr. Alda agreed. A warm and sensitive human being, he is, according to Rev. Ostertag, "very much himself in the 'Hawkeye' role, alert to social issues, and personally involved in the issues of ERA, integration, and the problems raised by the national tendency to suppress the Vietnam experience." An ardent feminist, Mr. Alda has travelled the country in support of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Mr. Alda sees \textit{M*A*S*H} as an opportunity to make a humane statement: "The show's bias is that people count." \textit{M*A*S*H}'s unforgettable characters play for more than laughs, "constantly fighting," he says, "the insanity of war." And they do it brilliantly. "A crutch for the hobbled human spirit," said one critic. Another called it "the ultimate comedy achievement."

Mr. Alda, whose earliest goal was to become a writer, scripts and directs many episodes. A master of satiric improvisation, Mr. Alda is a veteran of "Second City" and "That Was the Week that Was." He has won numerous awards for his many roles on and off-Broadway and in several television productions.

A graduate of Fordham University, Mr. Alda originally intended to study medicine. We are all indebted to the professor who gave him a "10" on a chemistry final, which convinced him to turn to English literature and the theater.
